DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 2, and 4 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Rejections and/or objections necessitated by the amendments

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1, 2, and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Otake (Japan 10-004143) in combination with Daniel et al. (US 2002/0000867).

With respect to claim 1, Otake teaches a semiconductor device comprising: an element isolation part surrounding one element formation region when viewed in the direction perpendicular to a main surface of a semiconductor substrate and electrically isolating the one element formation region from another element formation region; and a plurality of elements provided in said element formation region, wherein said plurality of elements includes a first field-effect transistor and a second field-effect transistor functioning as high side switches of a latch circuit and said first field-effect transistor and said second field-effect transistor share a drain region.

However, Otake fails to teach that the first and second field-effect transistors have a common source region.

Daniel et al. teach a latch circuit in which first and second field-effect transistors have a common source region to achieve reduction in circuit size and current consumption. See claim 18 and [0007] of Daniel et al.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art of making semiconductor devices to incorporate the above teaching of Daniel et al. into Otake's device to obtain the above benefits.

The limitation recited in lines 11-13 is intended use and it is being given no weight the determination of the patentability of the present device claim.

With respect to claim 2, Otake further teaches the first and second field-effect transistors are P-channel field-effect transistors.

With respect to claim 4, the use of a P-channel field-effect transistor and an N-channel field-effect transistor is well-known in the art of making semiconductor devices. See Daniel et al. publication.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 3, 5, and 6 are allowed.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

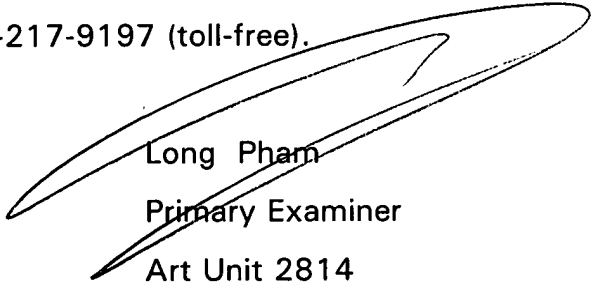

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
